PROCEEDINGS OF THE STATISTICAL SOCIETY OF LONDON.

Seventh Ordinary Meeting, May 15, 1843.

THOMAS TOOKE, Esq., V.P., in the Chair.

The following gentlemen were elected :—

William Copperthwaite, Esq.

Philip Rose, Esq.

Robert Cheere, Esq.

The following gentlemen were proposed as candidates for admission into the Society :—

John Coningham, Esq.

Albert Gledstanes, Esq.

A Paper was read “On the Division of Heritable Property and its Influence on the Distribution of Wealth.” Translated from the French of M. Passy, by Sir John P. Boileau, Bart., (see p. 185.)

Eighth Ordinary Meeting, June 19, 1843.

The Right Hon. LORD ASHLEY, M.P., President, in the Chair.

The following gentlemen were elected :—

John Coningham, Esq.

Albert Gledstanes, Esq.

Charles Hindley, Esq. M.P., was proposed as a candidate for admission into the Society :—

The Fifth Report of the Education Committee was read, (see p. 211.)

A second Paper was read “On the Influence of Employments upon Health.” By W. A. Guy, Esq., M.D. (see p. 197).

Coals Exported.—In 1841 the export of coals abroad was 1,848,294 tons, of which 344,728 tons was to British possessions abroad ; 451,003 tons to France ; 173,378 tons to Holland ; 173,437 tons to Germany ; 151,146 tons to Denmark ; 116,296 tons to Prussia ; 77,152 tons to Russia ; 26,961 tons to Sweden ; 15,894 tons to Norway ; and only 3,013 tons to Belgium. Large quantities are sent to the Mediterranean, including 48,059 tons to Turkey ; and 52,273 tons to the United States. The tonnage was nearly three-fourths British, viz. 1,377,680.

Crimes and Punishments.—During the three years ended with 1830, there were, in London and Middlesex, 52 capital punishments ; 1833, 12 ; 1836, none ; and 1839, 3. The number of committals for murder during the same periods respectively were,—31, 29, 9, and 21. It is a curious subject of inquiry to determine the cause of the increase in this deepest class of crimes since 1836, with the renewed use of capital punishments which it has necessitated.

[Parl. Paper, Sess. 1843, No. 354.]

Small Holdings in Ireland.—Of the total number of persons rated to the relief of the poor in Ireland, amounting to 997,434, upwards of one-half, or 525,713, are persons the valuation of whose holdings does not exceed 5*l.* per annum. The number whose valuation does not exceed 1*l.* is 149,960; above 1*l.* and not exceeding 2*l.* is 138,143; above 2*l.* and not exceeding 3*l.* is 98,220; above 3*l.* and not exceeding 4*l.* is 75,572; above 4*l.* and not exceeding 5*l.* is 63,818; making the above total of 525,713. If we suppose each of these small holdings to represent a family, as it generally does, and each family to comprise, on the average, at least five individuals, we have here 2,628,565 people on these miserable tenancies, or about one-third of the whole population of Ireland.—(Parl. Paper, Session 1843, No. 235.)

Troops in Ireland.—It appears from a parliamentary paper of the present Session (No. 359), that the number of troops in Ireland, which, on the 1st of January, 1843, amounted to 23,998 men, were gradually reduced, until, in 1840, they amounted only to 14,956; viz.—873 cavalry, 743 artillery, and 13,340 infantry.

Consumption of Spirituous Liquors in Ireland.—In the year ended the 5th of April, 1839, the number of gallons of proof spirits (whether from malt only, or a mixture of malt and unmalted grain) on which duty was paid for home consumption in Ireland was 11,931,922. In the year ended 5th April, 1840, it declined to 10,336,076; 1841, to 6,830,498; 1842, to 6,528,946; and 1843, to 4,813,045. The whole of this decline may be attributed to the temperance movement, except that which is exhibited by the last year, ended 5th April, 1843, which is attributable to the additional shilling per gallon imposed on Irish spirits having given a renewed life to illicit distillation, as the tripled number of prosecutions under this head plainly proves, the number in the year having increased from 942 to 2,805.—(Parl. Paper, Session 1843, No. 337.)

* The figures in this column are a rude representation of the relative mortality of the different districts, made from the figures in the preceding columns, by William Baker, Esq., M.D., Derby. This gentleman preferred stating the mortality per thousand to avoid the use of decimals. The fractions which he employed are also here dispensed with; the nearest whole number being substituted.

† The deaths in the metropolis for the years 1840-1-2 have been derived from the weekly tables, the returns for each year comprising 52 weeks, or 364 days. The returns from other places are for the years ending December 31st.

REMARKS.

The quarterly return, to which the following remarks apply, is derived from 114 districts (subdivided into 571 registrars' districts). Thirty-three of the districts are in the metropolis; and the remaining 81 districts comprise, with some agricultural districts, the principal towns and cities of England. At the last census (June 6th, 1841) the enumerated population of the 114 districts was 6,534,535, or nearly four-tenths of the total population. The average annual number of deaths registered in the 114 districts was 163,193, or 47 per cent. of the total deaths registered annually in England.

The number of deaths registered in the last Spring quarter, ending June 30th, was 40,059; while the average deaths in the five previous Springs was 40,208. The population of these town districts has increased for many years about 1·74 per cent. annually; and hence it is highly probable that, from the Spring of 1840 (the middle year of the five) to the Spring of 1843—an interval of three years, the population increased more than five per cent. (5·27). If the deaths had increased in that proportion, 42,326 deaths would have been registered; so 42,326 is the corrected average with which 40,059 must be compared.

The average quarterly number of deaths deduced from the five years was 40,798; with which the Spring average (40,208) very closely agrees. The mortality in the Spring quarter will, therefore, generally represent—for English towns—the mortality of the year.

The deaths by Typhus, or what is vaguely called Fever, in the metropolis were as follows: in the 13 weeks ending July 1st. 1843—

Weeks . .	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
Deaths by } Typhus . }	55	56	58	62	58	58	39	95	73	48	47	37	35

The epidemic of Typhus appears to be declining; it has tended to raise the mortality of the metropolis.

Districts in which the mortality was greater than the Spring average of the same districts:—Brighton, Portsea Island, Devizes, Liverpool, West Derby, Blackburn, Chorlton, Huddersfield, Halifax, Bradford, Gateshead, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Cocker-mouth, Wrexham.

Districts in which the mortality was less than in the Spring average of the same districts:—Isle of Wight, St. Albans, Cambridge, Ipswich, Norwich, Exeter, Redruth, Bath, Bristol, Clifton, Shrewsbury, Dudley, Wolverhampton, Birmingham, Leicester, Stockport, Bury, Manchester, Ashton, Abergavenny, Merthyr Tydvil, Anglesey.

The barometer was 0·123 below the average of the season. The mean temperature was 55°·6; which is 0°·8 above the average, but 0°·6 below the temperature of the previous Spring (1842). The mean of the maxima (day) temperature was 63°·3; the mean of the minima (night) was 48°·0; the mean difference was 15°·3. The difference between the dry and wet bulb thermometers was only 4°·4; the average being 5°·9. The air was therefore more humid than usual; and the fall of rain in 49 days was 7·5 inches—nearly double the average (4 inches.)

(a) 5,105,000 dollars for loans to railroads, all of which are completed and in operation.

(b) 33,364,355 dollars for Penn. Canal and Railway; 1,280,000 dollars for other roads and canals.

(c) 17,561,567 dollars 91 cents for state canals and general funds; 4,235,700 dollars, loans to companies.

(d) 3,697,000 dollars for Baltimore and Ohio Railroad; 7,197,000 dollars for Chesapeake and Ohio Canal; 223,731 dollars 65 cents for Baltimore and Susquehanna Railroad.

(e) 1,365,398 dollars 14 cents held by the state itself; 3,991,500 dollars 63 cents for internal improvements.

(f) 2,600,000 dollars subscription, loan, and guarantee to Charleston and Louisville Railroad; 1,035,555 dollars 55 cents for rebuilding Charleston.

(g) For the State Railroad.

(h) For the banks. Uncertain how much is negotiated of the 5,000,000 dollars in short bonds.

(i) 22,200,000 dollars for the banks, of which 4,811,111 dollars 10 cents is not negotiated, and remains in the banks.

(j) For the banks. The state denies its responsibility for 5,000,000 dollars of this debt.

(k) For banking purposes.

(l) 3,900,000 dollars for banking purposes.

(m) 1,500,000 dollars for the banks; the remainder for internal improvements; 722,000 dollars for works now incomplete and abandoned.

(n) For internal improvements.

(o) 5,320,000 dollars for internal improvements; 160,000 dollars for a penitentiary and a university.

(p) For internal improvements; 4,500,000 dollars for the Ohio and Miami Canals.

(q) 2,390,000 dollars for the state bank; 1,069,000 dollars to pay interest; the remainder for internal improvements.

(r) 3,034,998 dollars for the banks; 854,000 dollars to pay interest; remainder for internal improvements.

(s) 362,000 dollars for the Bank of Missouri; 232,000 dollars for building the capitol.

(t) 287,500 dollars for the Alexandria Canal.

(u) For internal improvements.

(v) 421,950 dollars for Washington Canal and subscription to Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.

The states are also indebted to the United States, for surplus money deposited with them, but which will probably never be demanded, 28,101,644 dollars.

The states of Vermont, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Delaware, North Carolina, and the territory of Iowa, have no public debt.

The Governor of Wisconsin states that "it is impossible to give from the records any specific information of the amount of the public debt of this territory." Bonds to the amount of 56,000 dollars were disposed of in March 1841. "The Legislature, at its late session, repudiated all but one of these bonds, sold by the agent, amounting to 1,000 dollars."
